46. Read the extract from the poem and answer the following questions.

A Psalm of Life

Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.

Life is real! Life is earnest!
And grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way;
But to act, that each to-morrow
Find us farther than to-day.

Art is long, and Time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums, are beating
Funeral marches to grave.

In the world's broad field of battle,

In the bivouac of Life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle!
Be a hero in the strife.

Read the student's essay.

Although most people are aware that girls' athletics offer the same physical benefit as boys' athletics—overall fitness—recent studies have shown that girls' participation in sports also carries unforeseen benefits. First, girls who participate in sports report having fewer problems with depression and have higher self-esteem than those who don't participate. Perhaps this partly accounts for why female athletes graduate at a higher rate, 69 percent, compared to 51 percent for girls who are not in sports. The outlook for even more young women participating in sports seems likely, especially since a survey of parents found that 83 percent believe that girls' athletic programs are as important as boys' programs.

59. Which statements need citations to verify the information? Select all that apply.
- (1) Although most people are aware that girls' athletics offer the same physical benefit as boys' athletics . . .
- (2) . . . girls who participate in sports report having fewer problems with depression and have higher self-esteem than those who don't participate.

- (3) First, girls who participate in sports . . .
- (4) None of above

Read the paragraph.

Set in America's heartland, stretching from Iowa to Texas, is a dangerous area known as Tornado Alley. First named by researchers in 1952, this area of the United States is more likely to experience tornadoes than any other place in the country (except Florida, which has over 60 tornadoes per year). Tornado Alley is prime territory for tornadoes because of its geographic location. Each year, hundreds of supercell thunderstorms form over this region, which is between two mountain ranges and the Gulf Coast. Despite the large number of occurrences each year, only a small number of tornadoes cause significant damage. When a tornado is reported, the National Weather Service assigns it a rating on the Enhanced Fujita Scale based on different characteristics of the storm (wind speed, size, damage caused, etc.). Americans who live in Tornado Alley need to be prepared for any size of tornado, simply because of where they live.

60. Select the word that could best replace SET to make the paragraph more precise.
