INTERACTIVE SECTION

Q.41- 45. Read the passage and answer the following questions correctly.

Investigation proved that the friends Angela had gone to spend the day with were some stately-home owners of the name Stretchly-Budd, hanging out in a joint called Kingham Manor, about eight miles distant in the direction of Pershore. I didn't know these people, but their fascination must have been considerable, for she tore herself from them only just in time to get back and dress for dinner. It was, accordingly, not until coffee had been consumed that I was able to get matters moving. I found her in the drawing-room and at once proceeded to put things in train.

41. The narrator was a detective.

Q.46-51. Read the poem and answer the following questions.

Perhaps this could have stayed unstated

Had our words turned to other things

In the grey park, the rain abated,

Life would have quickened other strings.

I list your gifts in this creation:

Pen, paper, ink and inspiration,

Peace to the heart with touch or word,

Ease to the soul with note and chord.

How did that walk, those winter hours,

Occasion this? No lightning came;

Nor did I sense, when touched by flame,
Our story lit with borrowed powers-
Rather, by what our spirits burned,
Embered in words, to us returned.

46. What are the gifts that the poet received from his companion?

- (1) Pens, Papers, Inks
